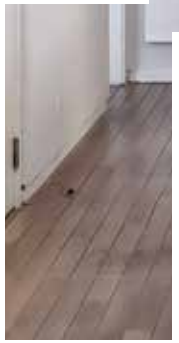
Christophe Gevers by axis71

Introducing a line of iconic lightings by visionary Belgian architect and designer Christophe Gevers. Discover a universe that is both organic and modernist while utterly coherent. Appreciate the ingenuityand the wit of creations that have left an indelible mark on Belgian design.

CG71 arco



As much, through his creations, the designer Christophe Gevers wanted to magnify the present moment by transcending the past and the future, he also succeeded in unifying the male and female archetypes in an original, unique creation, reserved for exclusive customers. : the CG71 arco born in 1971. A slender metal arc takes its source in a rectangular concrete base, and unfolds in a minimalist momentum that supports two adjustable light sources. When the best of the “industrial” spirit meets creative genius

“We can direct the light where we want”.

Carlo Nason

The Italian designer Carlo Nason was born in 1935 in Murano, into a family of expert glassmakers.
His father, Vincenzo Nason, ran the famous glass company Nason/Moretti and opened a second glass company under the name Vincenzo Nason & C in 1941.
From an early age, the young Nason was trained in the art of glassblowing, learning both the properties of the material and the craft techniques used in glass moulding and decoration.

The first objects designed by Nason date from 1959 and are part of a collection of blow-moulded vases produced by V Nason & C. Today, they are housed in the Corning Museum of Glass in Corning, New York.

Driven by his passion for design, particularly for cleanliness and geometry of form, he decided in the 1960s to distance himself from the family business, which mainly specialised in highly traditional and ornate decorative objects. Nason shifted his focus to the design of glass lighting in a modernist language.

Nason intended to produce his first models himself in small series, but soon his spirit of experimentation and innovation attracted the attention of Murano glass manufacturer A. V. Mazzega, and the company invited him to collaborate on new collections. The partnership lasted from 1965 until the 1980s and resulted in a range of iconic lighting designs still in demand today. Alongside the collaboration with A. V. Mazzega, Nason also created designs for other leading Murano glassworks companies.

He continued to create designs in the 1980s and 1990s, and also worked as a consultant for Casinos Austria, and later as a photographer. His work has been exhibited over the decades in numerous museums and art and design galleries in Paris, Milan and New York.

Ala Series 1969

I designed Ala at the end of the 60s, it was produced for the first time between 69 and 70. It took its name from a gesture that everyone can do by crossing their hands to imitate the movement of birds wings or when, as in the Chinese Puppet game, we project on the wall the shadow of a bird in flight. A cylinder that contains the light source, two disks folded and joined together. All the magic is there. There are no hinges or bearings, everything happens through the geometric game of balanced elements. Ala has an infinite number of positions and consequent shapes.
